

TIGER WORRIED BY HINES AND BALLOT FRAUD FIGHT AS CITY CAMPAIGN OPENS

Leaders Fear the Effect of Revelations Upon
Women's Vote—Recount Demand Up
To-Day—Other Political Gossip.

To-day opens the most interesting, if not the most remarkable, campaign that the City of Greater New York has ever witnessed. Tammany Hall has never been up against such determined opposition as just now confronts the tribes of 14th Street. Within and without the battle is being waged against the Braves.

Murphy is beginning to realize that he made the mistake of his political life when he attempted to throw over one of his own district leaders, James J. Hines. Not only has Hines beaten him at his own game, but he has brought a number of the district leaders into his camp. While the Grand Goblin of 14th Street affects not to be disturbed by the revelations which have come through the opening of the ballot boxes of the late deceased primaries, there are thinkers in Tammany who are figuring on the outside influences of the fight within Tammany's halls.

Henry H. Curran, Republican-Union candidate for Mayor, will begin to vacate the present suite in the Hotel Hermitage to-day, and by tomorrow all the campaign outfit will have been transplanted to the second floor of the Murray Hill Hotel. The Mayor returns late to-day from a short rest spent in and around little old New York, and to-morrow will sit down with his manager, John J. Lyons, Secretary of State, and various other representatives of his party, including the leaders of the various women's organizations, to obtain their views and their ideas as to how best they can all work together to rescue New York City from Hyman and Tammany.

There is to be a general discussion among the leading candidates and their managers, plus the suggestions of the women, and the entire programme for a lively campaign will be agreed upon.

Charles C. Lockwood, Fusion nominee for Comptroller is moving back to his home in Brooklyn to-day and before night he will have established his political headquarters in Manhattan.

Senator Lockwood has given less attention to his campaign than he has to his clients, who are all the home people of Greater New York. He has been so interested in the fight against profiteering landlords, who were given a new lease of profit by the decision of Justice Crosey and his associates in the Appellate Term of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn, that he has had little time to map out his campaign for Comptroller.

Senator Lockwood's first engagement to-day is a meeting of the Lockwood Housing Committee in the offices

Guardia has broken bread at the same table with Major Curran since the primary battle and has pledged his unwavering loyalty to Curran in his race for the Mayorship. It now begins to look like the Major will not have so much time to devote to his buddy. It was learned to-day that Mr. La Guardia will manage the campaign for his neighbors Daniel J. Sullivan, Republican candidate for County Clerk, and Thomas Cowan, Republican candidate for Register of Broome County. Both these headquarters will keep the Major fairly busy during the coming month.

Major Curran sent a letter to-day to Master Harris Ashton Dunn Jr., eleven-year-old son of Harris Ashton Dunn, of No. 634 West End Avenue, in reply to the boy's request for an autographed photograph of the Republican candidate for Mayor. In the request, young Dunn said he was happy to learn of the splendid victory Major Curran gained in the primaries and he assured Mr. Curran that if he were old enough he would vote for him on Election Day. He promised, however, that his father and mother surely would.

In his reply, accompanied by the Major's latest "minty," Mr. Curran with his usual modesty, wrote: "Put my photograph in the back of your album, in a modest corner. Four years from now, if you think I have been a good Mayor, you can move it up a little. The proof of the pudding is the eating."

Although all other speakers avoided the subject, Mr. Hillquit said:

"We Socialists of America do not accept all the new social doctrines that emanate from Moscow. We do not seek to establish a Soviet Government in the United States. We are opposed to terrorism and oppression exercised by the capitalist state, but we do not propose to supplant them by working-class terrorism and oppression. We do not propose to martyrize and sacrifice the present generation for the assumed benefit of the generations to come."

This is interpreted as a challenge to the more radical factions of the party.

SHE GETS 6 MONTHS FOR CRUELLY TREATING CHILD

Nearly Strangled Boy and Bent Him, Witness Says.

Mrs. Mary Hughes, who keeps an unlicensed "baby farm" at No. 229 East 25th Street, was sentenced to six months in the Workhouse to-day for brutally beating a twenty-eight months old child. Special Sessions Judge Hermann, Kernochan and Moss heard Anna Bello, fourteen, who runs errands for Mrs. Hughes, describe how the woman had held little James Ryan's head under a faucet of cold water, nearly strangling it, then varying her treatment by beating the baby over the back with a rubber gas hose and finally stamping it under foot.

Dr. Stevens of Bellevue Hospital said "the boy's body was covered with bruises and the eyes disfigured. Neighbors asserted Mrs. Hughes was to blame, but the husband said she was 'a very good-natured woman and fed all the cats in the neighborhood.'"

"She can feed cats and beat babies," Judge Hermann remarked. "She is one of the most cruel women I've ever heard of." Mrs. Susan Ryan, No. 219 Third Avenue, the baby's mother, made the complaint. She had left James with Mrs. Hughes while she was at work.

THIS CANTON CREPE

is like a clever woman, in the way it "gets across" its good points without drawing attention to them. Low waistline, pointed "apron" drape, wide sleeves bizarre with steel beads and colorful silk embroidery.

POIRET TWILL and

are becoming almost interchangeable terms in the minds of fashion authorities. Here deep motifs of contrasting hued wool embroidery emphasize the flare of the skirt; sleeves, too, are flaring; the collar surplice style.
